this book critically discusses missionary christianity and colonization in africa as twin enterprises with a common ambition while the colonialist set out to invest capital and reap profit the missionary desire was to tend and turn african souls from damnation it was this desire that drove the missionaries into the interior propelled by the belief that no land was too remote to escape their attention and vigilance it equally kept missionary zeal buoyant the clarification of the concept of salvation within the roman catholic church during the vatican ii council set in motion the current lethargy that has in some places crippled the mission itself in retrospect one can begin to wonder why africans became christians what reasons motivated the early adherents to cling to this foreign religion were there some internal deficiencies in african traditional religions which the africans hoped to remedy by joining the new religion or was it just part of the wholesale flirting with whatever was foreign and perceived to be modern what baits were used by the missionaries to entice africans christianity posed a danger to many of the time honoured answers to african problems these were the values africans converting to christianity were expected to abandon why have christians continually returned to their abandoned roots in time of crisis this moving well argued richly documented and empirically substantiated study concludes by cautioning against the stubborn drive at radical conversion to christianity with scant regard to the imperatives of enculturation rudiments of christian history an outline of persons events and teachings is written in the format of an informal outline which presents a summary of some of the major topics of the two thousand year span of christian history the author provides various interpretations of causal relationships of key events along with insight regarding historical persons who significantly impacted the course of christian history and a concise explanation of basic christian teachings and various christian theologies a wide scope of citations from primary sources and modern and contemporary scholars both christian and secular provides factual informativeness and in depth insight regarding the events teachings and persons involved in the unfolding of christian history this volume contains an extensive bibliography and clear and readily accessible reference information to the outside works that are cited this book is the fascinating study of christian enclaves in the southern cameroons of the colonial era the christian enclaves came into being with absolute spontaneity as a modus vivendi oblivious of the danger in store both colonial governments and traditional authorities provided the conditions in which these christian villages took root and flourished however what had taken root in the territory as a self protection mechanism soon unleashed its lethal enticing tentacles luring both the wives of royals and commoners into their bosom this disruptive influence of christian villages threatened the survival of ethnic groups arousing the rancour of traditional authorities and civil administrators in many ways the christian enclaves inhibited the potential of colonial governments to administer the territory these states within a state propagated by the missionary in the most insidious and perfidious of all manners sowed within their own bosom the seed of self destruction the whole issue of runaway wives of royals and commoners alike who took refuge in the christian villages troubled both the colonial and traditional authorities by offering a safe haven to these runaway wives and welcoming women who were outside the traditional male authority in a tribal setup the missionaries began sowing within the christian communities the seeds of their own self destruction records of wives of fons and commoners escaping into these enclaves eloping with a man and returning pregnant remained the regular subject of several colonial intelligence reports highhanded methods by missionaries in these villages brought both the missionaries and their work into disrepute in less than a quarter of a century these enclaves had lost the war of attrition waged by colonial and traditional authorities worn out by endless strife and dissension within and without and forced by contingency what had been conceived to be ideal christian communities with snowballing effects saw its premature demise
